Upland ballot to contain freeway issue

By DON GREEN Staff Writer

Upland joined three other area cities Monday night by placing a measure on the Nov. 7 ballot to let voters say whether they want the Foothill Freeway completed.

Claremont and Rancho Cucamonga agreed last week to put the measure on the ballot and the La Verne City Council approved the ballot measure Monday night.

The proposed extension would run through all four cities, beginning with La Verne to the west and stretching 28.3 miles to San Bernardino.

State Transportation Director Adriana Gianturco has called for a full review of the freeway proposal and cited several arguments against completion of the freeway in her report recently to the new state Transportation Commission.

Although the local vote will not be binding on state officials, freeway supporters hope voter approval may

Puppet show

A free puppet program will be presented at 10 a.m. Thursday, Aug. 24, on an outdoor stage in Magnolia Park, 651 W. 15th St., Upland, sponsored by the Friends of the Upland Public Library.

The program has been designed for participants in the library's summer reading club and others who might be interested in attending.

The Riede Puppeteers, a family group which has performed in this area for many years, will present a variety of short skits for 45 minutes. This will mark the third annual presentation of these puppets by the Friends of the Upland Public Library.

New story hour

A new bedtime story hour on Tuesday nights from 8 to 8:45 starting Tuesday will be held at the Upland Public Library.

The program is geared for children from 4 to 8 years of age and will be presented by Karin Basica. Pajamas will be the attire for the occasions, and children are asked to bring pillows to sit on. They will hear stories, see films and sing keep freeway Route 30 from being dropped from state highway plans.

Mayor George Gibson said, "This a matter of tremendous importance to the city. If the freeway doesn't go in, we'll have costs and problems — something like we discussed at Mountain (Avenue) and Foothill (Boulevard) — all over the city.
"We'll be living in a traffic snarl," he commented.

Tony Malone — executive vice president of the Upland Chamber of Commerce and administrator of the Foothill Freeway Association — noted Ms. Gianturco has been quoted as saying community support for the freeway is divided.

"We need to have a showing and bring this out," he said.

Malone said the Transportation Commission is scheduled to consider the Foothill Freeway at its Sept. 27 meeting in Los Angeles, but that commissioners would probably await the voting before making a final decision.

"I think we all feel after waiting this long that if we don't continue this battle for the next four or five months, then we're just playing right into their hands," he said, referring to state Department of Transportation (Caltrans) officials.

Transportation (Caltrans) officials.

Led by Bill Bottin, several members of the council expressed concern over the cost to the city of the ballot measure at a time when Upland is trying to hold down spen-

City Clerk Dee Carpenter estimated the ballot measure could cost the city from $4,000 to $5.000, according to the county registrar of Malone said he has heard lower estimates.

Bottin noted, "If I thought right now this would be the ultimate solution, I would have no problem."

Rosemary Hence, an Upland resident and local election inspector, said the measure will provide an "opportunity to solve the issue one way or another" and predicted voters would "turn out in droves" because emotions are strong on both sides

Malone cited figures forecasting increased accidents in the area if the freeway is not extended and called the extension an "investment in the future safety of our community."

Bottin joined the other four members of the council in authorizing that the measure be placed on the November ballot.

Gibson commented, "I don't think we can let anything go that could turn the tide in our favor."

The council delayed action until Aug. 21 on a second ballot measure sought by the county to make use of public funds for housing for the aged, handicapped and low- and moderate - income residents.

Neal Stone — with a private firm hired by the county — explained that voter approval is a state constitutional requirement for using the housing funds. He added that the county would foot the bill to place the measure on Upland's ballot.

The county board of supervisorsapproved the measure for unincorporated areas of the county July 24.

Grant seeker

City administrator has job that pays for itself

By DON GREEN

Staff Writer
Along with mountains of paperwork, Rod Anderson's job comes with a few idiosyncrasies all its own.

He is probably the only Upland city employee whose desk bears a tag marking the furniture "property of the U.S. government."

In fact, the federal government also owns Anderson's file cabinet, horizontal cabinet, swivel chair, three side chairs and electric typewriter.

Anderson recently completed his second year as Upland's grants administrator. The importance of state and federal grants in local financing has increased dramatically during the past decade, and helping coordinate city applications and monitor projects has become a full - time job.

Finance Director Anthony
Andrade, whose department works closely with Anderson in preparing and monitoring grant projects, said,
"It's a very interesting and very challenging field. Really, Rod's field is new."

Anderson, Upland's former planning director, has his salary paid entirely out of grants the city receives.

Andrade noted Upland's state and federal grants for the current fiscal year total $1,937,044, an amount equal to 16 percent of the city's $12.16 million budget.

The grant total does not include more than $62,800 in city matching funds and some of the project figures making up the total are tentative.

The figure may also seem inflated because it includes ongoing projects began during the last fiscal year, as well as funds allocated in the past and not yet spent.

However, Andrade pointed out that cities today generally have "much more of a reliance on other governments for revenue."

He thumbed through Upland's budget for 1968-69 and found "very little" in the way of grants. Anderson said an important part of his job is keeping track of the federal grants, which come to $1.54 million of the nearly $2 million total the city may be eligible to receive. He receives several types of reports and catalogs updating regulations and marking changes in federal legislation.

The city also subscribes to the

The city also subscribes to the Government Information Services, a private firm in Washington, D.C., that supplies detailed information on the rules of eligibility for specificgrants.

Although the information is helpful, Anderson noted sometimes there just is not any grant available for a city project. He said that so far he has not found any federal money for Upland's $14 million need for storm drains.

The city council, acting on the recommendations of the administrative staff, determines which grants to pursue. Anderson helps coordinate efforts with the departments involved.

He added that some departments are well versed on the eligibility requirements and filing applications. Anderson said he was not involved in submitting Upland's two most recent applications to the state: one that led to hiring a traffic engineer and the other requesting motorcycles for the police department.

1977 was a very good year for Upland grants. The city unexpectedly received $2.21 million in public works money from the U.S.

Administration after being shut out in an earlier round of funding.

That amount was evenly divided with the Upland Elementary School District, and Upland is using the bulk of its money to build a new fire station and city yards.

Meeting a federal guideline that construction begin on the public works projects within 90 days was one of the conditions of the grant.

Anderson explained that grant guidelines cover affirmative action, equal employment opportunities, how the projects go out to bid and other conditions. The projects are audited by Upland's accounting firm Dehl, Evans and Co. of Santa Ana, he added.

Although other public officials often call the conditions "strings," Anderson said he can see the need for the guidelines and the piles of paperwork that go with his job.

Otherwise, he said, each city would give its own interpretation to the regulations. Ensuring that Upland meets the regulations and keeps its records ready for auditing is a large part of Anderson's job.

Anderson and Andrade agreed

Anderson and Andrade agreed that the role of grants in city financing takes on added importance under the revenue limitations of Proposition 13.

However, the grants administrator noted "frost - belt" cities are currently lobbying for a larger share of funds aimed at assisting low- and moderate income families. He noted less funds might be available in the future for "sun - belt" areas.

Upland school bus drivers cut

The layoff of 11 bus drivers by the Upland School District as a Proposition 13 cost-cutting measure did not go unprotested last week.

The school board voted to dismiss the drivers and end most of its transportation program to save million for 1978-79.

About $800,000 worth of expenses were chipped away from a preliminary bugdget approved earlier this summer. Roughly $300,000 of that was cut by canceling a cost-of-living raise negotiated last spring for teachers.

Administrators and classified employees were also denied raises for the coming school year.

The school board laid off 24 parttime teacher's aides and an administrative clerk-typist to save about $65,000. "It's ridiculous some of the cuts that you're making," said district bus driver Sally Stark. "You don't have the best interests of the children or the taxpayers in mind." Mrs. Stark, who was among those

Mrs. Stark, who was among those losing their jobs because of the budget cuts, told the board an $18,000 travel and conference fund tor board members and administrators was a classic example of bureaucratic waste.

The money spent on travel "could have four bus drivers transporting about 2,000 students safely to school," said Mrs. Stark.

"We're faced with unhappy choices every step of the way," answered school board president Barry Brandt.

"We were told by mandate that certain conveniences the district provided needed to be reduced. Busing was one of these," said Superintendent George Renworth.

He said bus drivers and instructional aides "certainly should be given the highest priority to be restored at a later date if Renworth said there would be no busing of junior high school students this year. Busing would continue for about 20 percent of those previously bused as north Upland grammar school students are driven across town to balance declining enrollments.

Eighteen young musicians flew to Switzerland. They were heard in the foreign land, and listeners stood up, stomped their feet and applauded with gusto.

That's the saga of Chaffey College's Jazz Ensemble No. 1 when the group played in the Jazz Festival at Montreaux in July.

Jack Mason, conductor and director of the college's jazz program, said the invitation to the major jazz festival in Europe is only extended to prestige groups, and all the advance work preparing for the adventure and raising money for the trip was well worth the effort.

The band's major appearance at Montreaux was scheduled for 10:30 p.m., Mason said.

"It was a discerning audience in the 3,000-seat casino, and they had heard a lot of jazz over the days of the festival, but when we finished, they were on their feet clapping and stomping one foot in unison — this seems to be the European way of applauding," he said.

The music played by the Chaffey musicians were what Mason described as the old standards such as "In a Mellow Tone" from the Count book. "We finished with our real fast; barn burner, 'Doodle Oodle,' which features the tenor sax—it's good show biz," Mason said, "and it brought the audience right to its feet."

The next day's Montreaux newspaper gave the Chaffey College band a good review and reported the Ensemble No. 1 and a Japanese band were the best in the "big band division," Mason said. In the festival were four divisions, and the "big band" division featured high school and college bands from the United States, Canada and Japan.

While in Switzerland, the musicians played several places including the Palace Hotel in Gstaad, a converted palace which Mason described as one of the top resorts in the world. The 18 musicians and the party of adults on the trip ate and visited with some of the world's top tennis players who were there for an international tournament.

They played in the Lucerne Casino gardens, and in the Kontzersaal (concert hall) in Grindlwald, a village in the mountains which Mason described as "gorgeous." During the five days of the festival, the ensemble played indoor and outdoor concerts informally before the major concert in the big casino.

"Having the opportunity to play these smaller concerts gave the kids a chance to warm up," Mason said. Yet, the two weeks in the Swiss villages was not all work. The group had the opportunity to shop (though Mason said it was expensive with a Coke selling for $1.50), sightsee and the last night before flying back to Los Angeles, they went on a night boat dinner cruise on Lake Lucerne.

"It was the hokiest thing you could imagine, but we loved every minute," Mason said.

"How can anyone write in educational terms to make people understand the growth and maturity

I saw happen to these kids from this experience? There's no way," Mason said. "I was proud of the whole group and they conducted themselves like professionals, matter of fact, the festival director said we had the best band there."

A distinction Mason reported was to have a BBC (British Broadcasting Co.) disc jockey purchase one of the ensemble's records which he told Mason, "will be played tomorrow on BBC, and will go into the permanent BBC record library."

The band director said he'd like to take the jazz band back to Montreaux for the 1979 festival as he is sure an invitation would be extended, but he has other plans such as a 10-day Hawaiian trip the end of June and "there's a potential of an invitation to put on three concerts in Nairobi, Kenya, Central Africa, next summer."

The African trip would be profitable as Mason said they would reap the proceeds from the concerts which are attended by 2,500 to 3,000 persons.

"I'm told Nairobi is one of the most cosmopolitan cities in Europe and they love jazz," Mason said. "People throughout the world are opening up to jazz — they just have to understand what we are doing."

physician or practioner. Then one of the public health nurses spends a long time discussing nutrition with the patient. During subsequent clinic visits, nutrition is again stressed.

"Basically, we teach a lot about nutrition. Twenty to thirty pounds is the recommended weight gain these days," Mrs. Evans said.

"We give pre-natal instructions on what's going on inside of her," Mrs. Evans noted. "It's a very general pre-natal education."

Expectant women attending county OB clinics must deliver their babies at the San Bernardino County Medical Center. During the first clinic visit, all new patients are requested to go to the county medical center on the following Monday for an orientation.

At the hospital facility, they see labor and delivery rooms and a film on childbirth. A physician speaks, a nutritionist talks to them and a medical social worker discusses ways in which the hospital bill can be paid.

Although it is operated by the county, the medical center is a private hospital. Those not on Medi-Cal are allowed a long time, sometimes years, to pay the bill. Other hospitals in this area normally ask for the money in advance of the baby's birth.

"We do have people who are trying to pay their own bills," Mrs. Evans explained. "This way, they can take as long as they need to do it."

Following the initial visit to the Ontario clinic, patients have Wednesday afternoon appointments once a month during the first seven months of pregnancy. Then they go twice a month during the eighth month and weekly during the final part of their term.

At the OB Clinic in Ontario, there are two physicians, and two health care specialist practioners. In addition to the public health nurses, there are a clinical nurse, three community health aides a clerk and interpreters

Somewhere between 30 to 55 patients are seen every Wednesday afternoon. During these visits, the patients are weighed, blood pressure is taken, urine is tested and they are seen by a physician or practioner.

Then a public health nurse talks to them to answer any questions they may have and discuss medication they are on. "They all are to take vitamins and iron," Mrs. Evans Referrals are part of the public health nurse's job. She has a resources list to share with patients about available obstetricians and where they may take Lamaze (preparatory childbirth) classes.

"If someone doesn't know where to go, they call the health department," Mrs. Evans noted.

When a woman is ready to deliver her baby, she goes to the San Bernardino County Medical Center in San Bernardino, where copies of her chart are kept. "They go directly to labor and delivery, not to the emergency room," said Dr. Barry Fox, who is doing his residency with the county health department.

Lawyers split on advertising in yellow pages

By GLENN ANDERSON Staff Writer

Attorneys' ads promising free legal consultation and 'low prices" are now features of the yellow pages of the local telephone book

But a year after attorney advertising was made possible by a U.S. Supreme Court decision, area attorneys remain divided in their opinions about such advertising. The largest of the yellow page ads in the local directory is for the Legal Clinic of Charles Thomas Eye, who started private practice in Ontario a year ago.

In bold type, his ad offers help with five common forms of legal difficulty - divorce, drunk driving, evictions, auto accidents and criminal charges.

In smaller type, it lists further types of legal problems

Eye said advertising helps an attorney starting a new practice overcome the difficulties of letting people know he is in business and what services he offers. He said his advertising in weekly newspapers as well as the yellow pages has "brought enormous results" and that "every form of advertising has more than paid for

Eye said he has gotten "nothing but good reaction" from the local legal community. "I feel as long as an attorney advertises in good taste and is not misleading, he will be accepted (by the legal community)," he said. Except for firms outside the West End. other attorneys' ads in the yellow pages are more conservative in style and merely list attorneys' names and their Attorney James H. McDaniel of Pomona, whose firm placed such an ad, said the ad is intended only to inform the public "about what we do and don't do

McDaniel was critical of advertisements of prices, not found in the local yellow pages but apparently the most controversial area of attorney advertising.

He said an ad that indicates "I charge X dollars for something is misleading unless you set forth everything that is included Attorney Jeffrey Trudgeon of Upland maintained that prices should be matched to each client's problems instead of running a law firm "like a supermarket where all the cans are the same price.'

Upland attorney Robert G. Beloud said the bar should establish certification standards for more legal specialties as it has already done for tax, workmen's compensation and criminal law specialists.

Meanwhile, those who concentrate on other specialties should be able to indicate that to the public, he said.

Reading testing offered

A special testing program for students who wish to assess their reading skills will be offered for the first time this fall at Chaffey Community College, Dr Martin Gerstein, dean of student services, has announced.

The Stanford Diagnostic Reading Test will be given to students on five different dates on the Alta Loma campus, Gerstein said.

The test is designed to help students learn their reading strengths. With a counselor, students will be better able to choose college courses which are best suited for them," Gerstein sad.

This pilot program is an effort of develop effective placement testing for entering students in order to help them achieve their educational goals. All new full-time students or new part - time students with a degree or certificate objective are eligible to take the test and will receive an individual counseling appointment for an interpretation of the results.

The first testing date is on 29 at 2 p.m. The test will also be given on Sept. 12 and Sept. 14 at 9 a.m., on Sept. 18 and Sept. 20 at 2 p.m and on Sept. 23 at 9 a.m The test requires one hour to complete. To sign up for the test, students may call Chaffey College. 987-1737, 822-4484 or 735-0242, extension 281

4-H achievement

awards presented

The San Bernardino County 4-H Youth Achievement Night was held recently at the San Bernardino Valley College auditorium, with Kelly Teenor receiving a silver star and Lisa Douglas receiving a bronze star.

Miss Douglas was also a medalist for rabbits, and Miss Teenor was a county winner for selfdetermination.

Residents named to dean's list

Twenty-six West End students were named to the spring dean's list at Mt. San Antonio College, all attaining a 3.0 or better grade point average.

Phillip Aten, Elizabeth Field and Dorothy Smith, all of Cucamonga, were also named to the list.

Diesel vehicle cleanup endorsed by smog board

By PETER WONG Staff Writer

WEST COVINA - A sharp reduction in the sulfur content of diesel fuel has been endorsed by the South Coast Air Quality Management District board, despite strong objections from oil companies.

By an 8-0 vote, the district board supported the proposal as part of its strategy to control most sulfur oxide pollutants in four Southern California counties by 1985.

The actual measure must be approved by the state Air Resources Board. All mobile sources of air pollution — including trucks, buses, trains and certain cars which use diesel fuel - are under state control.

The measure would cost consumers an additional 2.5 cents per gallon of diesel fuel, the district staff has estimated.

The measure would reduce sulfur oxides released in the burning of diesel fuel from a projected 41.2 tons daily in 1985 to 8.2 tons daily. That is a reduction of almost 80

The district board urged the adoption of a measure that would reduce the sulfur content of diesel fuel from .25 percent (or greater) to .05 percent by 1982.

That would give oil companies the time to add expensive sulfurremoval equipment to their

The district staff says this will cost the companies $17.5 million in investments plus an additional $21.6

million in operating expenses annually

Relatively small oil companies cannot afford to make such expensive investments in their refineries, said Arthur Malacky, director of economics and planning for Edgington Oil Co. in Long

"It would act to concentrate power in the hands of the major oil companies," Malacky told the

The board agreed later that when the state Air Resources Board considers the measure, it should give some thought to the problems of smaller companies.

Representatives of major oil companies argued that the measure would lead to shortages of diesel fuel in the mid-1980s.

They said it would force continued dependence on oil imports and require the construction of expensive sulfur-removal facilities they do not think can be justified for cleaner air.

"It is not a sound strategy," Norman LeRoy, manager of environmental affairs at Chevron's El Segundo refinery, said.

Since most sources of sulfur oxide pollutants are stationary, LeRoy argued, oil companies investment of millions of dollars to produce cleaner diesel fuel wasn't justified.

Sulfur oxides are generally released into the atmosphere when fuel oil is burned, gasoline and other oil products are refined, and coke is manufactured for steel. They are discharged in the form of sulfur dioxide, a gas.

Once in the atmosphere, sulfur dioxide combines with oxygen to form sulfates.

Both pollutants tend to aggravate respiratory illnesses even more than the photochemical smog common in Southern California.

LeRov said it would cost consumers an additional 2.6 to 3.6 cents for each gallon of cleaner diesel fuel, plus 1 to 2 cents extra for oil companies to recover their investment costs.

"That's a substantial burden to be borne by the public in Southern California for a questionable benefit," LeRoy said.

But Riverside County Supervisor Al McCandless, chairman of the district board, said oil companies will have to add refining capacity for diesel fuel anyway as more cars are equipped with diesel engines.

'That capital is going to be spent anyhow," McCandless said. Some of that money could pay for sulfurremoval equipment, he added.

"I don't see the concern of the oil companies.' McCandless commented

Some oil company representatives testified that diesel fuel with a sulfur content of more than .25 percent was being sold regularly

This prompted Rolling Hills Councilman Thomas Heimsheimer, vice chairman of the district board. to say, "This is a much more powerful rule than I thought.

Heimsheimer said the measure should apply throughout California so that high-sulfur diesel fuel won't be bought elsewhere and burned in Southern California.

The proposal for low-sulfur diesel fuel is one part of the district's strategy to achieve state and federal sulfur dioxide standards by 1985, and the state sulfate standard 95 percent

The spirit of Proposition 13 pervaded the state of session prior to summer

Californians' desire to reduce spending at all levels of government was we wrestled with the 1978-79 ways to hold the line on the amount of all public checks.

Soon after voters approved the now nationally mous tax-cutting initiative in June, Assembly subcommittees pared $1.2 billion from the governor's budget submitted last January.

Working under the tightest deadline the legislature has ever faced. we developed a plan for implementing local assistance from the state's surplus, requiring cuts averaging 10 percent during the transition period.

Legislators re-examined months of work in an already-spare state budget with 518 separate funding items, eliminating some and making deeper cuts in others.

Governor Jerry Brown 'blue penciled' several items from the final legislative compromise budget, taking it below the spending level for the previous year - a record in recent California history.

The Assembly also supported the governor's efforts to hold down layoffs in local government during the next fiscal year by requiring state employees to forgo a pay increase this

Big Bear ride set Aug. 12-13

One of San Bernardino County's most popular equestrian events, the Big Bear Trail Ride, will saddle up for the fifth consecutive year on Aug. 12 and 13. The Vaqueros Arena, nestled in scenic Big Bear Valley, will be the roadhead and base bamp for the ride. The scenic Pacific Crest Trail, wiht its pine - lined slopes and picturesque views, will offer riders a sense of history while challenging even the most experienced rider.

Saturday's ride will start at 9:30 a.m. with a 5 to 6 hour ride, followed on Sunday with a shorter ride of 3 to 4 hours, allowing riders to return home early.

Camp sites will be provided at Vaqueros Arena for $1 per rig per night. Trail registration will be $1 for both days, and riders may register for one or two days. This ride will be a self-contained campout, but supplies and services will be available at Big Bear. The arena will be open for Friday night

All fees will be collected at the Vaqueros Arena. No advance registration will be required.

Members of new diocese comment on Pope Paul

By MARGE GROSS

Roman Catholics of the new Diocese of San Bernardino are mourning the death of Pope Paul VI, who led the church for 15 years.

Bishop-elect Phillip F. Straling of the diocese, enroute from Africa to San Bernardino and the Holy Rosarv Catholic Church which is the the new diocese, called the Rev. John Pomis, associate pastor, to convey his sorrow.

A statement was issued by Father Pomis as follows: "The Bishopelect Phillip F. Straling and the people of the San Bernardino Diocese mourn the passing of Pope Paul VI, but we rejoice in his Resurrection

"This is an especially sad event for Bishop Straling as he was recently named bishop-elect of the new Diocese of San Bernardino by the deceased pontiff

"The supreme pontiff, through skilled leadership, led the Catholic Church through the turbulent years of Vatican II, and he was truly a great man. Holy Rosary Church (San Bernardino) will celebrate a special Mass of Resurrection for the Holy Father this Thursday (tonight) at 7 p.m.

In the West End, the Rev. Peter Brennan, pastor of St. Anthony's Catholic Church, Upland, said, "It is the end of a time in a man's life in the church - a man who lived in most difficult time in the modern century. Personally, I believe Pope Paul will be recorded as one of the greatest spiritual leaders in the

"He lived in changing, turbulent times and was always a symbol of strength and faithfulness to the never-changing word of God.

As regent of the Catholic Daughters of America, Court Our Lady of Fatime, Mrs. Glenn White of Upland, said, "Pope Paul was mild mannered, but stood firm on decisions. He worked hard in carrying out the regulations set down in the second Vatican Council.

"Seeking to be fair with everyone," Mrs. White continued . "he will be remembered as a pope who worked for both peace and

The Rev. Lawrence Battle of Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church in Montclair said, 'I had been received in audience by Pope Paul in Rome on four or five occasions - I have seen him in person and have followed his career when he was a prelate in the long reign of Pope

'He recently visited so many different countries in the interest of helping all mankind." Father Battle said. "He'll be remembered for his encyclical (Humanae Vitae) on human life - the very controversial one because it stated Catholics were forbidden to ever use artificial con-

"He was famous for his speech to the United Nations (1965) and his plea for 'War never again, never again war," Father Battle said.

He was a kind and compassionate man who directed the church in one of the most difficult periods in his time - he will go down as one of the great popes.

If you are using electric grills or some type of electric accessory, never cut off the grounding plug on the 3prong plug. These plugs are designed to protect against shock and should be connected to a 3-wire, properly grounded receptacle.

Electrical accessories should only be used with heavy duty extension cords designed for outdoor use. An UL Label on the extension cord will indicate whether the cord is intended for outdoor use. Never route extension cords through doors or gates where the insulation could become damaged, causing potential shock and without regard to variety or maturity.

But seasoned cooks know that potatoes, like apples, have certain personality characteristics. The more you respect their differences the more you'll enjoy the final

Some varieties are round or kidney shaped. These potatoes have a solid, waxy texture and are fine for boiling and for use in salads or casserole dishes.

The long, oval-shaped baking potato is the variety to use for the accompanying recipe. After peeling, the potato is partially sliced to give an accordion effect. Place the cut potatoes in cold water to prevent darkening. Before roasting, dry the potatoes and arrange in a Drizzle melted corn oil margarine over each potato so it will seep in between the slices.

Baking time depends on the size of the potato — it will vary from 35 to 45 minutes in a 425 degree oven.

The result: a fancy looking potato that meets today's need for low cholesterol, fat controlled diets and a delicious accompaniment for roasts, steaks, in fact, any

Make super papaya salads

Summer treat

This summer salad served in a fresh papaya "bowl" tates as refreshing as it looks. Papayas are becoming more and more popular as those with adventure to try something exotic start to buy and serve the delicious fruit. It is most refreshing for summer eating

It's not a melon or a pear, its taste is reminiscent of a peach and its center holds shiny, black seeds. Give up? Fresh Hawaiian papayas have arrived — filling produce sections and shopping baskets all ove r the Mainland, thanks to a generous crop and almost daily shipments from Hawaii. And are they delicious! Fragrant and sweet, nothing adds excitement to meals like a slice or two of golden papaya. And although papaya are available year 'round, they're at their peak from now through July, so remember to bring some home next time you shop.

They're easy to use if you know what to look for. Papaya growers suggest choosing fruit with smooth, green unblemished skins. Their color changes from green to mostly gold when ripe and they'll ripen by themselves when left at room temperature two or three days. Keep ripened papaya in the refrigerator for up to a week and they'll be cool and ready to use in a myriad of Fruit salads are especially delicious served in attractive fresh papaya "bowls." And what an elegant way to eliminate dishwashing! Just slice papaya in half and discard their seeds. You can use "as is," or remove the gold - colored flesh and cut into chunks leaving the shell intact, as shown in our Summer Salad. Papaya, strawberries, grapes, pineapples and walnuts adorn a papaya shell, and the tangy citrus dressing adds just the right accent. Papaya Summer Salad with Citrus Dressing is guaranteed to cool off the warmest

In fact, cooling you off is a papaya specialty. Serve a papaya half with a frosty scoop of raspberry sherbet topped with a sprinkling of grated coconut. Or enjoy papaya in a frozen fruit souffle with other fresh summer fruits. Real papaya enthusiasts, though, will testify that the best way to enjoy refreshing papaya is simply sliced with a squeeze of lime or lemon juice. And since papaya won't darken when cut like many other fruits, they're also great make - ahead helpers - for kebobs and fondue - dipping, for instance.

Another terrific papaya - plus is their nutritional credentials. They're loaded with vitamins A and C, but are skimpy on calories - only 80 per average 7 - ounce papaya half. So for cool, nutritious and easy eating this summer, get in the papaya habit. And enjoy!

Papaya Summer Salad

2 Hawaiian papayas, halved and seeded 8 strawberries, halved

2 tablespoons chopped walnuts

½ cup seedless grapes

Lettuce leaves 2 cups cottage cheese

1 can (8¼ ounces) pineapple slices, drained Citrus Dressing (recipe follows)

With teaspoon, carefully scoop out papaya meat into bowl, keeping shell intact. Add berries, nuts and grapes to papaya. Refill shells with fruit mixture. On lettuce lined salad plate, stand each filled shell on pineapple slice. Scoop cottage cheese alongside, nestled in lettuce leaves. Serve with Citrus Dressing. Makes 4 servings.

Citrus Dressing

1/4 cup light corn syrup

1/2 cup mayonnaise 1 tablespoon grated orange peel

1½ tablespoons grated lemon peel 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice

Combine corn syrup and mayonnaise in small mixing bowl. Blend in remaining ingedients. Makes about 1 cup

Controlled fields harbor seeds for garden flowers

set out some plants in your garden this spring. Soon you'll have marigolds, zinnias, asters, petunias and other varieties bursting into a rainbow of color to beautify your yard and home until fall

How and where are seeds for these flowers produced? An imaginary trip to Southern Coastal California (or better yet a real one) gives a kaleidoscopic Large acres of bright blooms carpet sunny valleys near Santa Paula, Lompoc and Salinas to produce seeds for gardeners all over the world. These areas are also centers for research in creating spectacular varieties such as Bouquet Hybrid Zinnias, Lady seeds for annual flowers, or other recent introductions which put on an outstanding beauty pageant all summer

> Why are flower seed crops usually raised in California and not in the eastern part of the United States? Burpee Seed Company flower breeder Ellwood Pickering replies, 'Soil and growing conditions in Southern Coastal California are ideal for producing top quality seeds packed with vitality.

"The right amount of moisture for best plant growth is supplied by surface irrigation during the flowering season from May to October, when it rarely rains. Warm, sunny weather lets the seeds mature and dry thoroughly just what they need to develop their full potential.

United States, sudden summer showers might often wet mature flower heads. This could cause serious trouble by lowering the germination (sprouting ability) of seeds harvested from them.

Now that you know why seed crops are grown on the West Coast, let's enjoy some of the flower fields. What is that eye - stopping red? Those are Red Man Zinnia with 5 inch ruffled quilled flowers atop neat, busy plants 2 feet tall. Adjacent may be a strip of golden yellow Senator Dirksen Marigold, named in honor of the late Senator from Illinois, who for more than ten years promoted the American Marigold for the National Floral Emblem of What a brilliant edging or border marigold, and it's great for pots and window boxes too.

California are adaptable to growing in other areas with different climates. Crops raised under the best conditions supply the best seeds. Furthermore, prospective new varieties created at the plant breeder's western trial grounds are rigorously tested in the east and other parts of the United States to newcomers will thrive just about anywhere they are

Native plantings conserve water

To gain the most in water and bedding plants closer in savings from California where their visual impact is native plants, choose those plants native to summer dry locations away from fog belts and streams. These are plants that have adapted to the Mediterranean climate of wet wintrs and long dry summers. Among them are the toyon(Heteromeles arbutifolia), Fremontia (Fremontodendron), California lilac (Ceanothus), and coast Silktassel (Garrya elipti-

There are many more drought tolerate species at nurseries - some California natives, other native to the mediterranean, Africa, China, Australia and South America. Whether selecting strictly natives or mixing drought tolerant selections, remember that all will need supplemental irrigations until established. Most have adapted to fast drining soils common to rocky or hilly landscapes so provide loose soils or raised beds.

Be sure to group plants with similar water requirements together. Many natives resent summer irrigations and should not be placed near lawns where automatic sprinkler systems might reach them. If the plan is to conserve water with drought tolerate species, while still growing a few favorite thirtsty plants, a wise planting scheme places the drought tolerant plants to the rear of the landscape. Use California natives such as the red-berried toyon as background shrubbery. Plant higher water requiring planes such as azaleas

vegetable plot is used to its Weed out problem should be replanted with warm season plants to make use of the land year to keep lawn lush

Weeds are rude. Just when you have that gorgeous lawn coming up green and lovely, out they pop seemingly from nowhere (or at the very least from some remote villages in the Middle East). You notice that even the neighbors don't have quite the same weeds as Weeds are also thirsty and hungry, and it's going to take a great deal of determination on your part to get rid of them so your shrubs and plants, trees and vegetables between the plots. The can do their best without unnecessary competition. raised beds improve Given the slightest entree, stuff like dandelions, thistles ing and coarse grasses will wend their way into your garden and, if not deterred could quickly turn it into an overpopulation of the world's "most successful plants.

So, determination in hand, you approach the problem. Cultivation of garden beds is one of the oldest, and best, methods known. It removes weeds immediately, helps break up the surface and improves penetration of air and

Armed Forces retiree may get assistance

One day before his retire- technicians ment, the career member of the Armed Forces has at his disposal all of the personnel experts to answer his questions and take care of his problems. The day after his retirement, he is on his own when it comes to solving his problems.

This dilemma has been faced by retirees in many ways. Some have been knowledgeable enough to handle their problems but others got off on the wrong track and their problems have been compounded.

Helping the retiree. regardless of his branch of straighten out misinformaservice, is the objective of the newly-organized Retired Affairs Office at confused Norton Air Force Base, San Bernardino. Part of a nation-wide program to keep Air Force retirees involved, the Retired Affairs guidance. Office effort is designed to assist those with problems by opening active duty the most frequently enpertise of qualified Retired Affairs center.

Typical of problems encountered by those who man the small office at Norretired master sergeant who wanted an extension of household goods. He was directed to the proper agency for solving his problem by retired Master Sgt. Myles Bonville and his wife Bonnie, one of the several husband and wife teams who volunteer their time to keep the office going.

Your Good Health & Chiropractic

Dear Doctor: I mope around day after day, feeling depressed and "in a fog". I don't have any energy and just can't seem to get my work done in the time I used to. usually sleep, but often feel even more tired after I get up than I did when I went to bed. I try to eat right and get some exercise, but I tire out very quickly. What do you think the problem is? Mr. D. M. Dear Mr. D.M.:

It sounds like you're suffering from chronic fatigue, although it's impossible to tell what the cause might be from your letter. But I would recommend that you arrange for a complete physical exami-nation, and the sooner the better. Chronic fatigue can result from low blood sugar, poor body functions, lack of proper nutrition, an injury, or any number of causes. It can lead to extreme nervousness, poor digestion and elimination and lowered resistance to disease to name just a few possibili-

You must remember that the normal body possesses a comfortable margin of metabolic reserves. In cases of brought on by long and arduous hours of mental and physical ex-ertion, sufficient rest DR SEBBAS can restore the feeling of well-being. But when rest doesn't restore a person's energy level to normal, something is obviously normal fa-

The first step in eliminating chronic fatigue is to correct the primary disorder. Proper body function must be restored and vital nerve energy must be allowed to flow freely throughout the body. Again, I would urge you to arrange for a complete physical examination at your earliest convenience. Chronic fatigue, by its very nature, is bound to get worse before it gets better, and the increased stress and worry that go with it will do nothing to help the problem.
